We have some hope, however, that the opinion of Gen. Sherman will at least be a set-off to that of his Honor, Judge Russell, in the estimation of the people of the

Gen. Eherman,

The speech of Gen. Sherman, made few days ago in the city of New Orleans would of itself alone be worthy of notice The opinions of a man occupying the po sition that he does, in regard to the policy of the government, are not to be lightly passed by, even if they were in accorwith these of the government. But no such accord exists. Gen. Sherman, in the expressive slang of the day, "goes back on" the whole course of proceeding in regard to the South since the surrander, and he is a man neither unknown nor to be de spised. His position as General in Chie of the U. S. Army will command re-pec and consideration for his utterances. The alone would be enough to inspire us with the hope that the dawn of a better day is upon us, but when taken in connection with our telegram from Washington City on yesterday, announcing that no action had been taken under the Ku-Klux Bill for the reason that neither the War Department not the Judiciary Department was willing to undertake the execution o the law, each insisting that it was the duty of the other, though heretofore each had been jealous of the other, we think there is good ground to hope that wiser counsels are about to prevail.

Without General Sherman's co open tion, President Grant will find it difficult to carry out his schemes of oppression and usurpation. His emphatic condemnation of the course pursued, will go far to ward disabusing the mind of the Northern people of these prejudices so sedulously instilled by interested politicians. Th rebuke to Southern men who have side in giving credence and circulation t slanders upon the land of their birt coming from such a source, is a stinging one and well merited. Taking it all in all, the speech is a very remarkable one.

Exposure falls thick and fast upon th lying villiflers of the State before the se called "Outrage Committee." Lusk's turn has come. As we have heretofore stated this creature Lusk, Solicitor of the Eleventh Judicial District, was the most shameless and bru'al of the swift witnesses before the Congressional Inquisition. Hi sayage utterances were suggestive of the Court-yard bully, who can whip all crea tion, after the danger is past.

This man, it will be remembered, state in his evidence, that Northern men were musafe in North Carolina, and he cited, t show the "prejudice" of his own neighbors, the case of the Rev. Mr. Pease, o New York, who settled in Asheville, an who, on attempting to preach in that place, was at once left to harangue empty benches. Mr. Pease is out in an almirable card, denying, in toto, this infamous libel that he and his family hal been treated there was not a very sensible falling off in are called noon to grees and the same kest entire neighborhood apposed to it. with uniform courtesy and kindness.

tinel, signed by some fifteen Northern gen tlemen, who have settle in North Carolina, corroborates the experience of Mr. Pease, and declares what every honest man knows and must confess, that there is no freer land under the sun for all, except cotton for less money than those who buy knaves and scoundrels, than North Carolina. The fact, indeed, (and we would otherwise,) that those very miscreants are allowed to vituperate and slander a noble people, with perfect impunity other than the detestation of all honorable men, is the strongest commentary upon the public forbearance and regard for law.
